

JEFF FUNNEKOTTER - FREELANCE WRITER

Sample weekly newspaper contributions

2003-present

Reader Jeff Funnekotter, on sprinter Justin Gatlin's claim that a trainer must've applied steroid-laced cream to him during a rubdown: "Apparently, Gatlin was being treated only on a knead-to-know basis."

From Calgary contributor Jeff Funnekotter: "Keenan treats goalies the way babies treat diapers -- crappy, and demanding frequent changes."

From Calgary contributor Jeff Funnekotter: "A track star from India was recently stripped of his/her silver medal when it was revealed she was actually a man. It's not the first track scandal involving a conspicuous Johnson."

Jeff Funnekotter, after Tiger Woods announced last week that he and Elin are expecting a second child: "Sigh. Even the guy's physiotherapy regime is better than mine."

Contributor Jeff Funnekotter, on the PGA and LPGA planning to do drug testing next season: "Talk about extra pressure -- players are expected to hit the cup on the first shot."

Jeff Funnekotter, after the Netherlands pulled off a pair of shocking victories over the Dominican Republic at the World Baseball Classic: "Even more remarkable was seeing them run the bases in those wooden shoes."